The US 24 West: Manitou Springs to Interstate 25 EA Project Team

The Colorado Department of Transportation selected the following consultant teams for this project:

CH2M HILL

The leading team member is CH2M HILL. CH2M HILL is an employee-owned, multinational firm providing engineering, construction operations and related services to public and private clients in numerous industries on six continents. CH2M HILL approaches transportation planning with an eye for the community context and develops solutions that fit the community. This process integrates natural resource and socioeconomic issues as project determinants, constraints or opportunities. Mary Jo Vobejda, P.E., is the project manager.

Wilson & Company, Inc., Engineers and Architects

For more than 70 years, the Wilson & Company name has represented quality services. Wilson & Company's expertise spans transportation planning, highways and bridges, surveying, mapping, and right-of-way and land acquisition capabilities. Award-winning projects have hallmarked Wilson & Company as a leader in planning, design, and construction management. Charles R. Gustafson, P.E., is the US 24 corridor manager.

Blakely + Company

Blakely + Company is a full-service communications and public relations firm providing everything from strategic planning through execution of media programs, creative and public relations. The firm was founded in September 2001 by partners Kyle Blakely, Monica Ramey and Heather Hatch.

THK

THK Associates, Inc. is a planning, landscape architectural and economic research firm. Since 1969, THK Associates has provided community planning, urban design, and landscape architectural services to both public and private clients throughout the western United States. THK has extensive experience with transportation projects in southern Colorado and understands the way in which they must be integrated with both rural and urban communities.
