PRESS RELEASE

Improvement options developed for the WestConnect Planning and Environmental Linkages Study

DENVER—The Colorado Department of Transportation and the WestConnect Coalition of agencies have developed options for transportation improvements along C-470 between Kipling Street and Interstate 70, and along the US 6/CO 93 corridor between Golden and Boulder.

These improvement options were developed as part of the ongoing WestConnect Coalition Planning and Environmental Linkages Study, which is evaluating options to reduce congestion, improve operational performance and safety, and address future transportation needs along the study corridor.

Community input is requested regarding the potential improvements. Members of the public are invited to participate in a telephone town hall meeting on May 22 to learn more about the study, the alternatives screening process, and the improvement options developed to date.

Additional information will be available online beginning May 22, including graphics and four videos presenting a study update and describing improvement options for each corridor segment. To view the graphics, submit a comment, or to join the project mailing list, visit the project website.

Public comments will be considered during further development and evaluation of alternatives. Public open house meetings are planned to occur this fall before development of study recommendations.
